Congress the information at his disposal, such as he thought it appropriate to submit. The President's action in the matter had been strictly confined within the limits of executive authority.

Mr Mills was still speaking when the morning hour expired at 2 p m but, on motion of Mr Hill, he was permitted to proceed with his speech. He spoke of the picture presented in the overthrow of the Hawaiian government and the American republic in power able to cope with all the nations of the earth standing with its guns sloped to the lips and urged upon the acceptance of a poor half savage half civilized Queen. The adoption of this policy by the United States will be perhaps only a question of time but if that was to come it should be decently and in order. If the people of the United States had an opportunity in the declaration of the right of self government they should disapprove the action of their minister and of their naval force and restore the government which they had overthrown in Hawaii.

Mr Allen (Dem) of Wisconsin thought it was due to all Senators that before the discussion as to Hawaiian affairs proceeded they should be in a position to deal with the facts and to know what they were. He believed that everything asked for in the resolution (and much more besides) should be furnished so as to enable the discussion to be conducted on an intelligent basis. But there were some things he thought why the resolution ought not to be adopted at the present moment. The President in his annual message had made a brief statement of his general position in relation to Hawaiian affairs and had said that full and [illegible] would be promptly sent to Congress. In view of that complete and [illegible] course for the Senate to pursue was to defer making a request of the President.

Mr Hill (Dem) of New York said that he did not propose to cross the Hawaiian bridge until he got to it. He did not propose to discuss the question of original procedure or the wisdom of what had been recently done by the present administration. He did not understand that these questions were involved in the resolution. He seldom agreed with the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr Hoar) but he did agree with him in this particular that the resolution was an ordinary and simple one asking for information from a department of the government in relation to a most important matter. It was information for which the American people had looked in the President's message and which they had been disappointed in not finding there. When Senators ascertained what instructions had been given and understood what the true situation was they could determine what they ought to do. He did not consider that the adoption of the resolution in the absence of the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs would be any disrespect to that Senator (Morgan). What the Senate might see fit to do when the information was furnished was another and a different subject altogether. The suggestion that the resolutions should not be acted upon in the absence of the Senator from Alabama was simply for the sake of delay and in order that Congress might be powerless to take proper action in a certain event. He had no reflection to cast on the previous administration or on the present administration. He had no unkind words to say in relation to the action of the previous Minister to Hawaii or of the present Minister. If it had been publicly hinted that instructions had been given to upset the Provisional government by force if necessary, that would bring up the question as to whether the President had the right by the use of the army or navy and without the consent of Congress, to restore the previously existing status, even conceding that the former government of Hawaii had been overthrown by fraud or force. The information asked for in the resolution was asked because the Senate was entitled to it. The resolution was respectfully worded. The information was asked only so far as it was in the President's opinion consistent with the public interests to furnish it. He knew that that was the usual form but he did not see why the information should be withheld for a single moment. What harm was to be done if the people could know precisely what was now going on in the Hawaiian Islands? No good reason could be presented or is presented why the President should not promptly comply with the resolution. There are reasons why the information should be given here and now. Perhaps at this very moment, at this very hour, the navy of the United States, co-operating with the United States Minister, might be seeking to destroy the Provisional government by force. He did not desire to intimate that the instructions given to the United States Minister at Hawaii (whatever they were) were improper, because he did not know what they were. Some might say that the President had done right and some might say that the President had done wrong, but no Senator knew what the President had done, and the resolution simply called upon him to inform the Senate on the subject. Were the instructions (Mr. Hill asked) that the Minister should negotiate for the destruction of the Provisional government by intrigue or by some arrangement, or were they that he should restore the pre-existing status, by putting the Queen back? He concluded by declaring that on principle there was no objection to restorat on.

Mr Sherman (Rep) of Ohio favored the passage of the resolution. There was one thing which appeared to him to be very plain and that was that the Congress of the United States had not been treated in the open and fair way in which an administration, a part of the government of the United States, should treat the Congress of the United States. Whatever might be the ideas or information of the President they ought to be conveyed to the public at large, not only to Congress but also to the people. There was no reason in the world for secrecy. All the facts ought to be communicated to Congress. Mr Sherman said that all he desired to say on the present occasion was that if it was the purpose of the President by the use of military force to restore the Queen in Hawaii it would be a fatal act of public policy, a great injustice to the people of the United States, and almost an insult to the Congress of the United States.

Mr Gray (Dem.) of Delaware agreed with Mr Sherman that there was no objection to the adoption of the resolution, although in view of the President's promise to supply all the information promptly there was no urgency or exigency.

Mr. Pryo of Maine gave testimony to the high character of Mr Stevens and declared the readiness of himself and his colleague (Mr Hale) to defend him against any attacks that may be made upon him.

The debate was closed by Mr. Call (Dem) of Florida, and the resolution was adopted without a division.

After a short executive session at five minutes past 4 o'clock adjourned until to-morrow.

A JAIL BIRD'S BRIEF FLIGHT.

Mines and Stocks—News Items from Cripple Creek—Fire Works—Matter of Opinion About the New Camp at Hartsel.

There was an exciting time down in the northern part of the city yesterday afternoon. Bill Lear is a prisoner who has been serving a jail sentence for some petty debts and his time was nearly up, so he was treated as a trusty. Yesterday Lear decided to take a French leave and dressing himself in his best clothes put his overcoat under his arm and walked out of the jail. Jailor John Bean saw him going and gave chase. Lear was a little too rapid for the jailor and he began firing his revolver. This attracted the attention of a number of people and they joined in the pursuit. The prisoner went south on the alley after leaving Vermijo and finally over to Tejon, where he took a street car going south. The pursuers were on horseback in delivery wagons and in fact all soon came within hailing distance of the car. The motorman brought the car to a stand and the prisoner was about to step off when the conductor stepped in. Mr Beal came up and took this man back to prison. It was a mad flight for a few minutes with school children, workmen and vehicles in full pursuit.

COLORADO COLLEGE.

Mr Henry Carter of North Wilbraham Mass has just presented the College with $200 toward the Pearson fund. In the letter accompanying the check he says: "Certainly the present depression of Colorado's main dependence should attract the sympathy of all good men to stand by her institutions, upon which the best interests of the State depend. I do not think Christian men or women have any business to go on gathering wealth in this God's world and go hence feeling no responsibility as to the manner in which it may be again distributed unless we can be sure this will not be done unwisely or unjustly."

The contract for furnishing the new library building has been let to the Grand Rapids Furniture company. The building will have a thorough system of artificial ventilation by means of electric fans. The carving on the outside columns between the arches is now being done and when finished will add greatly to the beauty of the building. A distinguished New York architect pronounces the construction equal to that of any building he has seen.

While in Denver on Tuesday, President Slocum saw President Jeffery of the Rio Grande railroad and arranged to have the time limit of the Christmas half fare tickets extended so that Colorado College students may go home for the entire vacation and still have advantage of the reduced rates.

The geology class and some of their friends visited the Grand Caverns in Manitou last Saturday. They sang a number of songs in the Rotunda and tested its acoustic properties.

Last Sunday afternoon at the meeting of the Y W C A, Mrs Slocum gave the third of her admirable series of talks to girls.

President Slocum addressed the annual meeting of the State Missionaries society in Denver, last Tuesday.

Mr J C Devin gave a dinner at The Antlers to the College Hose football team on the day after the game.

Misses Bayley and Hayes and Messrs. J F Davis and H E Hope were away for the Thanksgiving vacation.

Professor Craigin writes from Kansas that he is getting an important geological collection for the college.

Professor Gile is confined to his home and there meets with his classes at the regular hours.

The removal of Mr H. E. Holt to Denver has taken three students from the college.

MINES AND STOCKS.

The Blue Bird is to be put down another hundred feet.

A shaft is being sunk on the Bethlehem on Bull mountain to catch the Pike's Peak vein.

The lessee of the Elkton received returns from a car of ore yesterday that nets $190 to the ton.

Cripple Creek people are agitating the matter of trying to induce the government to locate a land office at that point.

Mr C. S. McCreery brought down gold retorts from the Summit on Tuesday amounting to 100 ounces, the result of a six days' mill run at the Summit mill.

Mr I Grove, lately connected with the great Anaconda copper mine in Montana has been in camp and is greatly impressed with the prospects and out look for Cripple Creek.

The Crusher wants the Cripple Creek Chamber of Commerce to take up the matter of low grade ore treatment and to send samples to the most eminent foreign scientists to experiment with.

The Crusher is of the opinion that December will be the best month in the history of the Anaconda company. General samples from the car of ore sent out Monday showed $600 to the ton. The tunnel is now into the hill 355 feet.

The Spinney mill is now running steadily and doing good work. About 100 tons of the Raven dump has been passed under the stamps and a good profit made. Additional concentrating machinery will be added.—[Daily Crusher.

T H Robbins of Howbert, Colo, writes his brother D W Robbins of this city, that the prospects for finding gold mineral all through the country from Cross creek to Hartzel, a distance of fifteen miles is very good and many prospects have already been opened that show very good results. Mr. Robbins has lived in that section about twenty-two years.

Articles of incorporation of The Viking Gold Mining company were filed yesterday with the county clerk. The company will operate in this county with offices in this city, and has a capital stock of $500,000, divided into 5,000 shares of the value of $100 each. The directors of the company are J. J. Hagerman, Wolcott E. Newberry, Percy Hagerman, F M Taylor and J. A. Hayes.

Messrs. Pat Britt, Latt and partners are meeting with great success in their claim on the ridge overlooking the Rosebud mill. The vein runs north and south. It is well defined and has a pay streak of thirteen inches from the surface to the bottom of the shaft. Several shipments have now been made to the mills and a good strong has been realized. Mr Britt has a good thing and knows it.—[Miner.

The Difficult Creek district which is only a few miles from Aspen is now attracting considerable attention. One of the best posted mining men in this country expresses the opinion that there is more gold in one acre of the Difficult Creek territory than there is in the many miles of gravel explored out at Hartzel. Sayer & Properties are working on Difficult and the results are more than satisfactory.—[Aspen Leader.

Very quiet is the report of the stock market. Many attribute the condition to the approaching holiday trade and perhaps to the fact that December has heretofore been notably a dull stock trading month. Yesterday Gibson was a buyer and was offered at 2½. Anaconda is also some what weaker and was offered at 20½. Isabella is at 29. Colorado is at 4 and Work at 11. There was some call for Jack Pot yesterday at 1½. Summit is more active in about 1½ bid and 1¾ asked. Total sales yesterday were not very large.

House Proceedings.

Mr Hitt (Rep) of Illinois introduced a resolution relative to Hawaii and declaring the sense of Congress in the matter.

The hour of 1 having arrived the second order was taken up, being a concurrent resolution accepting the statue of General James Shields in the name of the United States thanking the Governor and State of Illinois for the gift and assigning it a place in Statuary hall. Eulogistic speeches were made by several members.

Mr Springer then moved that the House adjourn as a further mark of respect to General Shields and in order that the members might have an opportunity of attending the unveiling ceremonies.

The motion prevailed and at 2:20 p m the House adjourned until 12 o'clock to-morrow.

WEARY OF WORK.

A Democratic Congressman Who Wants No More Destructive Legislation.

Washington, D C, Dec 3.—[Special.]—It was a Democratic member of the House who said to me recently: "I wish to say that I am tired of this tariff business and I am sick when a new tariff bill is proposed. When I came to Congress I was very anxious to be on the great ways and means committee with the hope that I might be able to do some good. If I could compass that I felt that my term of legislative service would be full. I was elected and schemed to accomplish my desires. I shall not stop to tell how I did it. I succeeded, and that was the beginning of my troubles. As a rule, I do not like hard work but when it comes to hunting and day and getting nothing for it there is where I draw the line. I am more than two months behind my work and for the new tariff bill and I very regretted before it all my life. After days of consultation in the committee room I have gone home to be confronted by work that with the help of my good at it again of ordinary days, sometimes till midnight or after standing in the face.

Too Much Work.

"I have put in more work enough in three months to have won a half dozen lawsuits, with fees in each case equal to half my year's salary as a congressman. I have had to master the details of two or three separate manufacturing industries, their materials, methods, and everything. I have pored over long columns of figures till my brain was going round and round like a ballet dancer's skirts. At night after retiring my great master has danced the 'Tarantula Boogie' till daylight peeped through my chamber windows. That I have escaped insanity or at least a mental collapse I attribute as much to good luck as anything else.

"And what do I get for all this?" continued the congressman, somewhat bitterly. "My salary? Yes, and the consciousness of having striven with might and main to do my duty. But I doubt if these are sufficient compensation for the labor, for the anxiety, for the risks, for the loss of friendships, which I have had to suffer. To frame a new tariff bill on a principle is to quarrel with one's best friends. To be a tyrant, hard hearted and unyielding, is to deny the prayers of men who declare they are to be ruined, is to inflict hardships upon one's own section of the country, to visit loss upon one's own people. It is to have a lot of one's fellow members of the house declare their re-election is to be made impossible, and to be compelled to turn a deaf ear to their entreaties for a chance to remain in public life.

"Nor is this all. One is required to take a fearful responsibility, to pursue a policy which one's nearest friends say will result in party defeat and if that defeat comes, as it may in the machinations of politics a lot of fellows will rise up and curse us and say they told us so and that if we had been possessed of as much sense as a schoolboy we should have known better. This is what it is to be a member of the ways and means committee when a new tariff bill is in the process of construction. I want no more of it in mine."

Advice to a New Member.

Mr Bryan of Nebraska is not the member of the ways and means committee who talked in this way. Mr Bryan is perfectly infatuated with hard work and besides he glories in the opportunity which he has had to put his anti-protection convictions into practice. Mr Bryan tells a funny story of the manner in which he first made his appearance in congress. That was only two years ago. He was not only a new member but a very young and green one. One of the old members from a western state took pity on the youngster and called him aside and gave him a lot of good advice. "Now, I'll tell you how to work it," said the old member. "I've been through the mill. I have had my eyeteeth cut. Unless you know the tricks of the trade down here you are not in it. In the first place, you've got to have a place on a good committee. Without a big committee place you are nobody and as a nobody you stand a mighty poor show of re-election."

And then the old member sat down and gave the young Mr Bryan an hour's lesson in the art of making headway as a congressman.

"All of which did me a heap of good," says Mr Bryan. "I immediately proceeded to do the very things which the old member had said I must never do, and to leave undone the very things whose performance he had urged upon me as of prime importance. The result is that I am a member of the ways and means committee and am perfectly satisfied with my position in the house and in my district."

"And how has your friend the old member fared?"

"He? Oh he failed of re-election and is now occupying some sort of a clerical position in one of the government departments."

There were no developments in the Hawaiian situation at the State department. Senator Gray, who will lead the supporters of the administration on the Hawaiian policy in the Senate, had a long conference with Secretary Smith.

A Gottingen physician reports the case of a boy of 14 who in two years had had between 150 and 200 teeth removed.

WAITE'S CONVENTION.

Governor White long ago determined to call an extra session of the legislature, whether or no, and the result of the Salida convention is not therefore a matter of surprise. The smallness of the convention, the number of mining camps which refused to answer the call, and the closeness of the vote in the convention, are surprises, perhaps, but eminently gratifying to those who, like THE GAZETTE, have all along believed that the miners of the State are very much superior in mental ability to the Governor.

Of the twenty camps included in the call, only ten were represented, and these by only eighteen delegates instead of the thirty to which they were entitled. Of the sixty delegates whom Governor White selected to represent the miners whom alone he thinks worthy of consideration, forty-two remained at home, eight voted against him, and only ten, (one sixth of the entire number) favored the extra session. The condemnation of the Governor's action is greater than anyone expected, and his persistence in calling the extra session only shows that he has no desire to listen to anyone, except those who agree with him.

As to his great plan, it is wholly absurd and impossible. It could not do any good, it would do vast harm; it would make the State ridiculous. We do not believe there is any danger of its adoption by the legislature.

The members of the legislature will now have an opportunity to show that they really have the interests of the State at heart, for an immediate adjournment after laying the Governor's message on the table is what the people want and what they expect of House and Senate.

MINISTER WILLIS'S DEFEAT.

The latest news from Hawaii goes to show that Minister Willis is not the kind of a man the President wants there, and that he is the kind of a man the American people want there. It is safe to say that if Willis had been Blount, or Blount Willis, things would have been different, in one case worse and the other better.

The action taken by our new minister in Hawaii is especially significant in two ways. In declaring that he would permit no disorder until the receipt of further instructions from Washington, he has, as pointed out in our yesterday's dispatches, virtually established a protectorate, and the responsibility for this act can hardly be shifted at Washington.

But it is a reflecting upon the actions of Minister Blount and the vital point at issue that the actions of Minister Willis are of very great significance. The situation in Honolulu is not what Willis expected to find it, and he has not been able to carry out his instructions. But those instructions were based on Blount's report. Therefore Blount's report is not reliable. Cleveland and Gresham can hardly accuse Willis of being a member of the conspiracy which they thought they had unearthed, and his testimony, so far as it has been made known, is the most damaging to the administration side of anything that has been presented.

WHY THEY DID IT.

We have found out why the vote in the mining camps of this State at the recent election was generally in favor of woman's suffrage. It is an old adage that one has to go away from home to find out the home news, and this is an unexpected and powerful confirmation of the proverb.

In the issue of the London Times for Nov. 17, in the budget of American news, we find the following:

"Woman suffrage was carried in Colorado by a majority of 4,000, the miners desiring to encourage female immigration thither from the New England States."

It has been somewhat of a puzzle to everybody why the miners did vote to give the ballot to women, but now it is solved. But it was only by taking a comprehensive survey of the whole of the United States, from a distance of 3000 miles—a sort of bird's eye view, as it were, that the proper conclusion could be reached. Now that it is reached, the reason will be plain to everyone. Colorado has more men than women, especially in the mining camps. Massachusetts has 70,000 more women than men. Therefore they ought to balance up. The ballot is offered as a bait to lure hither to Cripple Creek and Creede and Aspen and Goose Creek the spinsters of the old Bay State.

We have not heard as yet of any female colonies in process of formation at Salem or Ponkapog, for emigration to the Rocky mountain region, but no doubt when spring comes that season when the thoughts "lightly turn to love," as the poet sings, we shall see them coming by the car load.

THE PENITENTIARY MUDDLE.

Governor Waite has succeeded in mixing matters up at the State penitentiary at Canon City in a way that will probably require judicial intervention to untangle.

In the first place, he appointed as Warden a man who seems to have been totally unfit for the place. In the second place, he dismissed, or tried to dismiss, this man, not because he was unfit, but because the Governor wanted the place for a man by the name of Toy. Toy tried to take possession, but was ejected, and McLister is still in.

The next step of the Governor was to give notice of removal from office to Mr. Reynolds, one of the members of the State Board of Penitentiary Commissioners, on the ostensible ground that Mr. Reynolds was guilty of malfeasance in office because he had $11,000 of State money on deposit in his bank, for which he paid no interest. The real ground of removal seems to be Waite's desire to pack the Board of Commissioners of the Penitentiary in his own interest, so as to obtain from them an endorsement of Mr. McLister's removal.

The whole transaction is disgraceful to the Governor from beginning to end. It is no more disgraceful than many other of his acts, but it has aroused more indignation than any thereby has at least one good effect—the widening of the breach already existing between those whom we call the Populist party of Colorado.

Before Governor Waite's term is over, he is likely to become the most universally unpopular and thoroughly discredited Executive officer ever known in the United States.

A Football Scientist.

Some three years ago Mr. Lorin F. Leland saw a game of football by accident, and, like many another man, was immediately taken with it. Then he went to another match and watched it closely, and then another, till he finally began to appreciate the skill required in executing the different plays, and to realize how plentifully a man would be rewarded if he would put his mind up in the theoretical possibilities of the game, and study them out into practical results.

He spent a year at odd times in the intervals of his active business studying the principles of the sport in the abstract, drawing off the conceptions of many a new play on paper, and gradually the idea grew upon him that the evolutions carried out during a football match by the two eleven were relatively the same as those executed by two armies during a battle. Then he began to re-read his well-worn books on Napoleon, on navy tactics, and the histories of Napoleon's campaigns.

One of the chief points brought out by the great French general was that if he could make a large proportion of his troops and throw them against a weak point of the enemy, he could easily defeat that portion, and gaining their rear, create havoc with the rest. Following out this idea, Mr. Leland argued to himself that if he could get a football team so arranged that the eleven men should throw their entire weight, strength and momentum against a weak point of the opposing team, which must be necessarily stationary, detached and incapable of using its full weight in opposition, they would break through and make ground very fast.

Mr. Leland then proceeded to put into practice, first on paper and then on the field, with the result that by taking advantage of a rule in football which allows the opposition team to keep on side until the ball is put into play, he could get his eleven running at full speed in a well organized and compact body before the other side could move. It only remained for him to use this powerful moving body against the "ends" and "tackles" to complete the military evolutions, and out of this came the "flying wedge" of last year's Harvard eleven, which has been taken up in a dozen different forms all over the country this year.—Harper's Weekly.

Absence of Large Lakes in Texas.

"It has been noted as a striking fact that Texas, although a state of unusual area, has not a single large lake. This seems the more remarkable when it is considered that almost every other geographic form is represented, with great variety, and the climatic conditions vary from moist to arid. In a recent paper on 'Notes on the Physiographic Evolution of Texas,' by Ralph S. Tarr, in the proceedings of the Academy of Natural Sciences, an explanation of the phenomenon is given.

"He holds that Texas contains no large lakes, first, because there are no regions of striking structural features, except one (the older paleozoic area, in which erosion has long been in progress and its lakes long since drained), and one in a region too dry for the existence of lakes, and, secondly, because erosion has tapped the shallow lakes that formerly, no doubt, existed on the new cretaceous and tertiary land. Sink holes in limestone regions, frequently containing small and shallow bodies of water, lagoons on the seashore, and oxbow lakes in the flood plains constitute the major part of the Texas lakes. To these might be added the expanded springs, the streams caused by the overburdened condition of the main stream (Pecan Bayou and San Saba river, tributary to the Colorado), and the chain of pools of the subhumid region, formed by the dislocation of the rock. The salt lakes, playas and alkaline marshes and flats of the trans-Pecos region are the dislocated remnants of lakes, formerly of greater size, just as the pools are the result of the annual dislocation of normally continuous streams.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Inconsiderate Designer.

The man, whoever he was, who designed the doors on the floor of the house of representatives up at the capital was a very inconsiderate individual. It need not be inferred that all the members of what the papers irreverently refer to as "The Cave of the Winds" are in the habit of getting into a condition where they need the speaker to remind them where they are, but even some very good men will occasionally get up in the morning with a deep, dark, blue metallic taste in their throats and a certain nastiness of nerves that ill comports with sudden shocks. Now in getting into the house they are much more than likely to use the side doors from the north and south corridors, and it is here that the architect has put in his fine work, for on both pairs of doors—there are elaborate ornaments of twisting snakes, cleverly cast, which leer at the passers-by malignantly and lifelike.—Washington Post.

One Gambler's Mascot.

There is a railroad man who has a novel method of raising money that is peculiar to himself. He has no diamond to put in soak when luck goes against him, as it generally does, and his final resort is an original one. Dollar by dollar his money goes across the green board and drops with mournful clink into the tin box. But there is an end to all things, even to a railroad man's wages in front of a faro layout, and when the last likeness of the Goddess of Liberty has been placed on ace or seven the poor fellow casts a despairing glance at his companions at the board and at the dealer, and then reaches up and takes out his false teeth. The dealer gives him a stack of white chips, and the game goes on. These teeth are a mascot usually, and the fellow quits with enough ahead to at least replace his masticators. Occasionally, however, the mascot loses its charm, and then for a week or two the victim of chance has to live on "spoon vittles." But he's a sport.—Anaconda Standard.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

PROBABLE PENSIONS

IT WILL SOON BE SHARPLY DISCUSSED BY CONGRESS.

A Statement by Secretary Hoke Smith. Senator Voorhees Tries—Senator Sherman Thinks That the Money Is All in the Hands of the Common People.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6.—(Special.)—Senator Sherman, it is understood by his friends, is preparing a speech on the pension question which will be one of the great efforts of his life. He will, for himself and his party, place a proposition before the people which he has been preparing and in which it is said he will go over the whole financial question in the last which he will undertake to deliver in the senate. On this account, as a sort of valedictory from a statesman who has been so conspicuously identified with our financial legislation for two decades, it is looked forward to with great interest.

Once of the positions of the minority is to hold a close watch on congress upon the management of the pension office under the Cleveland administration. Even some of the Democrats will openly criticise certain features of Secretary Smith's policy, among them Senators Voorhees and Turpie. Two cases of the pension office are held here, and both are pretty sure to be fully criticised during the next few weeks. Your correspondent will endeavor to give the case presented on both sides. For information concerning the administration side of the controversy Secretary Smith was appealed to, and he replied as follows:

The Administration Idea.

"It is well known that many men are on the pension roll who have no legal or moral right to be there. Their pensions were allowed through fraud, favoritism or carelessness. I have taken the position that unless a man has a just claim to a pension his pension should be taken away from him, so that as many as the more money left for those who have just claims. Whenever information reaches us that a pensioner has been placed on the rolls improperly, we carefully scrutinize the case. If there seems to be a reasonable presumption against him, if there is something which must be explained, if new evidence is necessary, we send notice to the pensioner that he will be asked to furnish this explanation or new evidence, and pending investigation his pension is suspended. The case is then made special; a new medical examination is at once ordered without the pensioner. As quickly as possible—and if the pensioner himself moves promptly little delay ensues—the matter is determined. If his case is a good one, he loses nothing, gets all his pension and has a firmer and more satisfactory status than ever before. If he is not entitled to a pension under the law, of course he has to suffer. That is all there is to the question. Suspension pending inquiry is the only way in which we can secure rapid determination of the questions at issue. If a pensioner were left on the rolls, delay would be to his advantage, and thus we would make little progress. No man with a just claim to pension need fear that he will be harmed by our efforts to purify the rolls."

Senator Voorhees Speaks.

Now for the other side of the case. It is stated by Senator Voorhees:

"It is unjust to suspend pensioners pending investigation, except in a few flagrant cases. The very fact that a man is on the rolls gives him prima facie rights. He cannot be dispossessed of his pension save by weight of evidence against him. It is time enough to cut off his pension after the finding has been unfavorable, not before. So long as human nature is what it is there will be found men willing to make charges against other men. These charges, often petty and malicious, are taken up by the pension office and made the basis of suspension. Pensioners are put to no end of trouble to defend their pensions. They must secure evidence, travel a long distance in many cases to submit to a new medical examination or hire an attorney to represent them. I believe in purging the rolls of all men who have no just claims to pensions, but I don't believe this is the proper way in which to go about it. I believe the people of this country would rather a dozen men should have a pension through a strain of the law or the evidence than that one old soldier who deserves a pension should be deprived of it."

Politics in It.

When the pension question comes up for discussion in congress, as it probably will in both houses either this month or next, there will be a lively debate. The administration is fortified with a great array of facts and figures concerning pensions that have been improperly allowed; while the other side is loaded with particulars showing injustice done many worthy soldiers by the policy of suspension practiced under this administration. The president and secretary Smith will not lack for defenders, nor for the need of help. Many Democrats who decline to take part in the dispute say the administration may be right, but that it was decidedly bad politics to bring up the pension question in this way.

Modern Steel Boats.

Ship's boats, made of steel, without seams or frames, and in all respects a vast improvement upon wood or metallic boats, have been tried in various liners and cargo steamers with greatest success. Just as pistons, back and front plates of locomotive and marine boilers are stamped true to gauge from plates of mild steel, so are these boats pressed out. They are hydraulic presses which carry dies and stamps, so that the shape produced is that of one half of a boat longitudinally. A plate of thin iron or Martin steel is placed in the press and comes out shaped. It is then placed alongside the opposite part and the garboards and ends are riveted to a bulb bar, which forms the stem, keel and stern.

Another advantage which attends the use of steel boats is that they are much easier to pull or to sail, because the wet surface is so much less, as is also the skin friction, than is the case with wooden boats. Weight for weight a small wooden boat is rather lighter than a steel boat; but a first class ship's lifeboat made of steel is lighter than a similar boat of build of wood. Lastly, steel boats are cleaner for the end.

The boats are always available; they require no protection from and are unaffected by the weather. Like all vessels built of steel, they require considerable attention to prevent oxidation; but this is easily effected with the ordinary appliance on board ship, and providing proper care is used a steel boat, as a steel hull, will last for years.—Shipping World.

She Had All of 'Em.

A seedy man of letters dropped into a cheap restaurant in London recently and called for his British beef. It duly came, but had palpably passed its first youth. The man of letters called the waiter and delivered himself freely of his feelings. "We never have no complaints, sir," said the waiter, feebly defensive. "Very likely," growled he of the meat, "for that old cow had 'em all. Bring me some mutton, and be somethinged to you."—Chicago Post.

For Bronchitis

I have tested it to the good of a medical society, and I have in the last few months sold a dozen bottles. I have sufficient confidence in it to recommend it to my patients. After trying various remedies without benefit, I began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and the effect has been marvelous, a single dose relieving me of choking and securing a good night's rest. T. A. Hizzoner, Druggist, Gen. Store, Lynn Mountain, Va.

La Grippe

"Last spring I was taken down with la grippe. At times I was completely prostrated, and weak as I was my breathing that my friends seemed as if confined in an iron case. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and my cough hadn't been taking it than relief followed. I do not believe that the effect would be so quick with any other medicine."—W. H. Williams, Cook City, S. Dak.

Lung Trouble

"For more than twenty-five years, I was a sufferer from lung trouble, attended with a racking soreness at times as to cause a hemorrhage, the paroxysms frequently lasting three or four hours. I was finally cured by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and my lungs have been sound ever since. I can confidently recommend this medicine."—Franz Hoffman, Leavenworth, Kans.

CHANGE IN TIME

OF THE

MISSOURI PACIFIC FAST MAIL.

Commencing Nov. 12, 1893, the great Missouri Pacific Railway Company will change the time of its fast mail train, as follows: Under the new schedule this popular train will leave Denver at [illegible], Colorado Springs at [illegible] and arrive at Pueblo at [illegible] p. m., leave Pueblo at [illegible] p. m., Kansas City at [illegible] p. m. and arrive at St. Louis at [illegible] a. m., where a direct connection is made in Union depot for all points north, east or south.

By this change in time a direct connection is made at Pueblo with D. & R. G. Train No. 1, from the west, and D. & R. G. Train No. 104, from Southwestern Colorado, enabling passengers to make a great saving in time over the present eastern connection.

By this change in time the great Missouri Pacific Railway Co. has demonstrated its willingness to build up Colorado, in again reducing the time between the West and East.

THE WABASH ROUTE

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST

It will be to your advantage to know:

That Wabash is the Short Line between Kansas City and St. Louis.

The Wabash is the shortest, and most direct route between Kansas City and Detroit, or Toledo, connecting at both these points with the Trunk Lines East.

The Wabash forms the most convenient route from western points to Chicago, and I make passengers in Chicago more conveniently to the World's Fair than any other road.

The Wabash runs Finer equipment for both first and second class passengers than any other route.

Call or write C. M. Hampson, Commercial Agent, 1224 17th St., Denver.

MID-WINTER FAIR.

The Mid-winter Fair at San Francisco will open on January 1st, and continue throughout the winter, where all the principal exhibits from the Columbian Exposition, Chicago, will be displayed, will be an additional attraction this winter. The great improvement in passenger train service, higher degree of comfort in the cars, shorter time required on the trip, combined with the cheapness of the excursion tickets now being sold to California and back by the "Santa Fe Route," make the journey agreeable, and one can almost say, economical.

The many delightful resorts now established in California afford every comfort and luxury desired by the fastidious, and present unique attractions. The Hotel Del Coronado, San Diego; the Raymond, Pasadena; the Redondo beach and hotels at Santa Barbara, Monterey, Riverside, Los Angeles and many other points have grown famous as any on the Atlantic coast, and a fact that should influence direction is that they all are resorts all the year round, although the greatest number of tourists are in California between the months of November and May.

This line offers choice of routes going and returning.

THE BURLINGTON.

THE POPULAR EAST-BOUND NIGHT TRAIN

Is the Burlington flyer leaving Denver daily at 8:30 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 8:25 a. m. and St. Louis at 7:10 a. m. the second morning, making close connection with all fast trains for East and South. Bald Heads!

What is the condition of your hair? Is your hair dry, harsh, brittle? Does it split at the ends? Has it a healthy appearance? Does it fall out when combed? Is your scalp full of dandruff? Does your scalp itch? Is it dry or in a heated condition? If the answer is one of yours, you need to be warned in time of what will become of it.

Skookum Root Hair Grower

is what you need. Its growth is not an accident, but the result of scientific research. Its wonderful properties are known to the civilized world. It stops the hair and scalp from coming out, and produces a healthy growth. It stops the scalp from itching, and free from dandruff. It prevents the hair from becoming gray or turning white. It gives the hair a healthy, soft and glossy appearance. It will grow hair on a bald head where the roots are not entirely dead. It will not grow hair on the face, nor on the palm of the hand. It will not make the hair grow on any other part of the body than the head. It will not make the hair grow long in a month. It will not do all that is claimed for it by other hair preparations. It will do what we claim for it, or your money will be returned. If your druggist does not keep it, we will prepay express on one bottle for $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00. The Forum

"The Greatest of all our Periodicals."

The foremost men of the world write the literature of contemporaneous activity for THE FORUM.

Every great subject is taken up by The Forum when it naturally comes into public attention and is treated by the best authorities, without regard to parties or creeds. It will keep any thoughtful reader informed on the tasks and problems of the time, as no other periodical does.

To many thoughtful people, the price of The Forum has hitherto been prohibitory; indeed all the great Reviews have been too high in price for the masses of intelligent readers. But now the number of readers of thoughtful literature—men and women who wish really to know what is going on in the world outside the narrow limits of particular sects and parties—is great enough in the United States to warrant so revolutionary a reduction in price. The Forum discusses important subjects, but it is not dull. The literature of contemporaneous activity is, in fact, the most interesting of all literature. American citizenship implies that a man shall know the opinions of the foremost men and the latest great achievements in every direction of activity.

SIZE AND QUALITY UNCHANGED.

The Forum is now as cheap as the magazines of mere entertainment.

"Skipped" To-Night.

Theater-goers who enjoy a hearty laugh will not neglect to visit the opera house this evening and witness the performance of "Skipped by the Light of the Moon." There are several first-class comedians in the company who are well adapted to their respective parts. Among the principals will be found such well-known names as those of Budd Ross, Eddie Shayer, J. H. Weber, C. L. Graves, Ed O'Connor, Miss Mae Warden, Miss Lida Wells, Miss Kate Browning, and that "quiver" of dancing soubrettes, Lizzie Collier."

It's War To The Knife,
AND the knife to the prices, now between The Famous, Colorado Springs' largest shoe house, and the other shoe houses. We have long done the shoe business in higher grades of footwear, and are now determined to do the shoe business of El Paso county in medium and low priced shoes also. If values and prices will merit it, we are sure to succeed. Never were so many "fake schemes" on hand before. There are "coupon sales" and "special shoe sales" and "going out of business shoe sales" all to no avail; the crowds still come to The Famous. We offer genuine bargains every day. And we want the people to understand that no matter what prices other shoe houses have named, do name, or will name, The Famous has had, now has and will have lower prices. You cannot afford to buy before visiting
